

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back its Color and Lustre with Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the sage tea and sulphur makes at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

DON'T SQUEEZE BLACK- HEADS—DISSOLVE THEM

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation; then, too, after they have become hard you cannot get all of them out. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of powdered neosalicylic acid, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge, rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unattractive blemishes should try this simple method.—Adv.

NOTICE To The Public

On account of the fact that the prices of all materials entering into the Shoe Repair business have advanced all the way from 25 percent to 50 percent and in some cases as much as 75 percent, it has become necessary to advance the prices of shoe repairing accordingly. The new prices will become effective May 1st, 1916. The new prices will not be extortionate and will allow shoe repair men only a fair profit for their work and investment.

SWISS INCLINE TO APE GERMANS

Pro-ally Sympathizers Think They Detect Tendency Toward "Prussianization."

ZURICH, April 21.—The sympathizers of the allies in the French speaking cantons of Switzerland continue a violent anti-German agitation. At Lausanne they have just held a mass meeting to protest against the "Prussianization" of the army of the republic.

The meeting passed resolutions demanding the recall of the Swiss officers who are at the different German fronts as neutral observers and the cancellation of all orders for arms and ammunition placed by the federal government in Germany, one of the resolutions says in part.

There is a growing tendency among our military authorities to ape the alleged German efficiency and to make our army more and more like the barbarian hordes of Germany which are detested throughout the world. This cannot be tolerated. If our military system really needs improvement the French army must be taken as our model. There is no necessity for buying German guns and shells, as we can manufacture them ourselves or get them cheaper and better from France. Our representatives in the federal council are requested to demand that the contracts of our army administration with German firms be cancelled at once.

NON-COMBATANT SLAVS ALLOWED TO GO HOME

BERLIN.—The German government has decided to permit several hundred Russian who have been interned here since the beginning of the war and are not of military age or physically fit for the army to return home. The prisoners will be sent to St. Petersburg by way of Copenhagen. Russia has promised to release an equal number of German civilians.

TAPERS PUT OUT WHEN RITES END

Maundy Thursday Exercises
by Masons Prove to Be Impressive.

Impressive on the extreme were Maundy Thursday exercises Thursday night in the basement of the Masonic Temple which 300 Scottish Rite Masons from all parts of the state attended.

Many ladies were present for the first time in the history of the chapter. At the conclusion tapers were extinguished, not to be lighted again until Easter, when Attorney General E. P. Freeling will deliver the principal address. The program included speeches by Judge Phil D. Brewer (master), and Howard H. Hoppa, and vocal selections from members of the order, with Edna Vane McIntyre accompanying at the piano.

Judge Phil D. Brewer was master of ceremonies at the outset and proposed a toast to "Our Country," a third ran through the same tribute at everyone stood and drank. It was a most impressive scene.

Judge Brewer introduced Howard H. Hoppa, whose subject was "Maundy Thursday." He gave a history of the development of the program from the feast of the Passover down to what is known as the "obligatory feast." His ceremony that was held Wednesday night.

That Christ was not crucified by the Jews, but by the Romans in Roman fashion and because of his opposition to the Roman government was a declaration by Rabbi Joseph Blatt, who responded to the toast. "The Eternal Lamb."

William H. Norvell of Tulsa, grand master, spoke of "The Grand Lodge and the Grand Master."

Scottish Rite Masons and Albert Pike, was Judge J. R. A. Robertson's subject.

Ben L. Henningson's response was to the toast "Oklahoma and Indian Country."

Shading and in deep shadows the chapter, during the toast. "Our departed brethren."

Judge C. R. Stuart delivered a masterful address on "The Hope of Maundy," as the concluding number of the speaking program.

The fourth anniversary of the Oklahoma state university's Sigma Chi chapter into the general fraternity body was observed Thursday night by a banquet at the Hotel Skirvin when members from the active chapter and alumni from various parts of the state were in attendance. The Sigma Chi is now more than fifty years old.

Telegrams of felicitation were received during the evening from Sigma Chi chapters including Walter P. Allen, grand counsel of the fraternity; George Ade and John T. McCreesh of Chicago; Fielding H. Yost of the University of Michigan; Dan McIntosh of New York; C. T. Cole, dean of the University of Oklahoma; Del. C. E. Parker of Mississippi; and Elton B. Hunt and J. B. Newby of Tulsa.

Mont E. Hughes of Oklahoma City was toastmaster. Talks were given by Rev. E. T. Lane, George E. Frederickson, Harry E. Hughes and Winthrop Williams of this city; Roy Lewis of Norman; C. L. Collins, W. L. Engleton Jr., C. L. Conner and Wyatt Marks of the University of Oklahoma.

The proposal was up in the fall of 1913, but was rejected at that time by a small majority. According to Mr. Grimm, conditions are vastly different now and in his opinion little difficulty would be experienced in carrying the election favoring the formation of Shafter county. Since the 1913 election the territory which would comprise the new county has been settled, new industries have come in, the population is much denser and the demand for a separate county is particularly insistent. The difficulty experienced by citizens of the northwestern part of Payne county and the southwestern part of Creek county and the west end of Creek county in reaching the county seats of their respective counties has led to the demand for a centrally located county seat, which in the event of the formation of a new county would be either Cushing or Bristow.

WAR MAY MEAN END TO LARGE GERMAN ESTATES

BERLIN.—The movement to produce homesteads for partly disabled German soldiers is growing steadily. Many cities and rural communities are buying large estates to cut up into small farms and give to the dependents of the fatherland.

WILLIAM OF WIED CALLS TO ARMS AMID WAR DIN

PARIS, April 21.—A House dispatch from Corfu says Prince William of Wied, recently reported to have been reinstated as ruler of Albania, has issued a proclamation at Elbasan, appealing to the people of the country to submit to the "Gustonic alliance and enroll in the army."

BELLEGRAD'S GIRL.

kind. Oh, you don't understand. Bellegrada's only my stepfather, but I-I promised to marry Roger LeFrench."

"Will you—now?" His voice made her face flush deliberately.
"Not now anyone else. Nobody could trust me. I've played as bad a game as they have." For she was done with pretending; if Roger had to take her as she was, he could take the others.

"If you mean Bellegrada and LeFrench, they've got nothing to do with me."

"You've got to." He should know all there was to know while she was about it, since Roger had seen fit to break all his promises. "Do you know what they got out of it? Sixty percent a month—a month—and you say it's nothing to you?"

"I say it can't last—practically. It's bound to be pocketed."

"Of course it is—if it were going to last wouldn't it have been worth their while to get for it? They're getting out all they can, and as quick as they can—no one would ever have heard the mill. Last night was going to be the final clean-up, unless they struck something they wouldn't leave."

"Take I have." Yurke's hand tightened on hers. "Nina, say you'll marry me. I—I don't want their mine."

"And I'll die before I'm paid for!" she snatched her hand away. "What do you know about me, anyhow? Nothing but that I'm a fool, who didn't play fair because I couldn't bear to see—things happen."

"I know all I want to know—coolly. I don't care for one single thing you've told me. I love you."

"And I'm not fit to marry anyone decent. There's something you don't know. I said Bellegrada was my stepfather, but my mother ran away with him, and brought me. I don't even know what my own name is. I've always gone by his and he's been kind. You needn't think about Roger. I'm done with Roger. But I can't turn on Bellegrada—and he paid for it."

The admission went to Yurke's heart. "Nina, dear," he began.

"Hush," she whispered. She was steady in an instant, as it was almost beyond Yurke to be steady. "The shift's coming on! I hear the men."

"They're only miners—Galicians, at that."

"You don't know." And it dawned on Yurke that it was not the gangs that troubled her. "Oh, come out quickly! There's a way."

"I won't be seen. If you will—freely. Do you suppose Bellegrada knows I'm here?" Quick! She snatched up the pump's chain, seized Yurke's hand, and ran with him down a little passage that came out into the main tunnel behind the entering gings—just in time, if either of the three had known it, to escape Roger LeFrench by a matter of three yards. You can't see the mine entrance from the mill or the office; if you go quickly no one will notice you."

"Oh—and something she had never meant to betray took Nina Bellegrada like an actual thing that could not be hidden—go," she sobbed. "Go!"

"Dear heart," said Yurke gently, "I'm going to the office. I don't have to work in the dark any more."

"No!" The hands that gripped his were loose with terror, with something else that thrilled the man where he stood. Oh, you don't know—I don't
